

Put your tax-deductible gift to work to improve water resources, soil health, and wildlife habitat.

Sand County Foundation inspires and empowers farmers, ranchers and forestland owners across the U.S. to sustain water resources, build healthy soil and enhance wildlife habitat while they work the land.

Thanks to you, Sand County Foundation is building capacity to...

...inspire more conservation-minded landowners through our growing Leopold Conservation Award program presented in 27 states,

...conduct needed research on effective conservation farming practices, that improve natural resources and a farm's bottom line,

...add talent to our growing team of conservation professionals and scientists,

...engage the next generation of conservation leaders in hands-on habitat development through our High School Pollinator Habitat Grants,

...and connect historically underserved farmers and ranchers with conservation mentors as part of our Land Ethic Mentorship Program.

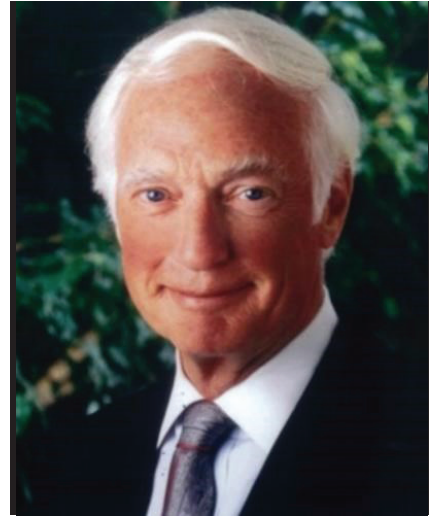

Leaving a Lasting Legacy

A year ago, we lost our friend and longtime Sand County Foundation Board Member, George Kennedy. George's guidance was transformative for a growing nonprofit. His wisdom, business and fundraising acumen, quick wit and philanthropic spirit were so inspiring to us. A dear friend of our late founder, Reed Coleman, George was a true gentleman who is greatly missed.

He was dedicated to using his business success for the benefit of his community as a board member and committed donor to many nonprofit organizations.

As part of his conservation legacy, George left a major gift to Sand County Foundation. We couldn't be more grateful to him and his family for their generosity and belief in Sand County Foundation's mission.
